

GOING DOWN - DOCTOR NICK CURES CLIVE!

Relieved - The Wookiee is relaxed

EXCLUSIVE by Gupta Press

Another shock horror exclusive - Doctor Nick uses a new technique to help injured Corinthian cricketer Wookiee Moore. Poor Wookiee Moore - real name Clive Moore pulled his groin while playing his 1st Jedi match of the season, the Wookiee was in such pain he turned to team physio -Dr Nick for some help, "Dr Nick I'm in agony what do you think?" "what have you done Wookiee?", "I think I've pulled my groin", "Ah no problemo, I've got this new massage technique that will give you great relief, drop your pants I'm 'going down' for a closer inspection". We at the Corinthian caught up with the two people involved in the 'lewd incident' "I can't believe how great I feel, but I do feel very sleepy now" said the Wookiee. Doctor Nick used a revolutionary technique first developed by Issacks Cox, when asked about what went on Doctor Nick replied "It's none of your business what goes on between two consenting adults, ermm I mean I cannot say client - patient confidentiality, all you need to know is the Wookiee is ok and will be fit for next week"

Episode No 7 - Car Repairs

Hello DIY chums as you are all getting more knowledgeable from our time together, I've decided to show you a new tool for your toolbag - the legendary tie-wrap! This week I'm going to save you a fortune with some car body repairs, everyone knows car body shops can charge loads of money after you have had a little accident. If you have had a bump & have broken the bumper fear not, get a drill out & drill a series of holes on both sides of the bumper, & join them together with tie wraps & voilà you're £300 better off, if you want to be posh you can trim down the tie wrap but I don't bother!

Remember - Accidents hurt - safety doesn't. .

Corinthian Jedi v 3Q's

Another match against the old foe 3Q's with another record about to be broken was it going to be the 5 year unbeaten run at Butt Lane, or was it going to be the 1st loss of the season for 3Q?

The Jedi had a full side out despite G-Lo forgetting the match had been moved to a Wednesday night & was in a meeting in Sheffield instead of Butt Lane! Nemo had to stand in for Admiral Taz (who was late) & let the 3Q bully him into 16 overs instead of the usual 20 overs, Nemo also lost the toss & the Jedi had to go into bat 1st.

Opening the Jedi batting this week was Wookie Moore & Kelly 'crap umpire' Kelly, the Wookie hit 2 boundaries & a single run before heading back to the concrete pavilion after being caught for 9. Super batsman Sol Holliday replaced the Wookie but after two overs he was bowled for 3 leaving poor Sol wondering where he left his batting boots this season! Then the 1st 'incident' of the match Kelly Kelly edged the ball into the wicket keepers gloves - the Q's all went up but Umpire Taz didn't see the incident, Kelly Kelly survived much to Didds the wicket keepers annoyance, after everyone calmed down the next was bounced down, "wide ball" said Taz trying to add petrol to the embers of the fire, Sol decide it was better to get Taz out in one piece & took over the umpiring duties. Nemo had replaced Sol & was backing Kelly well till he was caught for 1 but at least a duck was avoided. Kelly & Overseas Mick had a good solid partnership with some quality running between the stumps, till Kelly Kelly finally fell for 21 after getting caught. Padawan Robbie scored 8 before being bowled, Caribbean Roy was caught for 4 runs trying to push the run rate on, leaving Taz Collins & Darth Moore to see the last over out, but the Jedi had only scored 71 runs off 16 overs leaving a tall order for victory.

Admiral Taz was being very negative so Sol Holliday took the reins and gave a rallying call for the Jedi to give it a go "come on we could win this". Sol & Kelly Kelly opened the bowling for the famous Corinthian Jedi, the 1st wicket of 3Q fell early in the 2nd over with a run out, this was closely followed by Sol bowling out Munson for 4. Sol & Kelly Kelly were taking the Q's apart & after they had both bowled their 4 overs, 3Q had lost 6 wickets, could a shock be on the cards? Robbie & Nemo took over the bowling but were struggling to keep the form going, Taz changed Robbie for Overseas Mick but the results were still not coming. In the end the Jedi fell short on the run rate & with 3 overs left the Jedi tasted a moral victory, but on the plus side the pub was visited early to drown the sorrows after losing the Butt Lane record but hey ho records are for breaking!!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hi Piers

I have just read the latest installment of the very popular "Corinthian" what a fantastic read full of sports news helpful (if somewhat dangerous) diy tips batting/bowling stats etc etc although i could have saved myself the bother of reading it, i was at the barton bike night with your new star of the evening Boycott Brewis, when he recapped the whole of the previous weeks match to me word for word run for bleedin" run, wickets taken, diving catches made, even a full explanation as to why oh why he missed a catch , apparently it was going like a bloody bullet only one foot of the ground nobody could have caught that blah blah blah.... Anyway up keep up the good read see you all soon lol.

A weird week for the fantasy cricket this week - The Corinthian Jedi CC are playing well at the moment with very few fielding mistakes, the batting is still lacking the cutting edge of previous seasons even with the heavyweight addition of Sol Holliday, who actually happened to get the man of the match award, not for his batting (obviously) but for an excellent bowling display, the pink hat award was a tough one this week - Fingers voted for Nemo for weak captaincy (letting the 3Q's bully him to play 16 overs), Nemo retaliated & voted for Fingers (an eye for an eye!!), but the winner was Caribbean Roy for not really doing anything wrong apart from a mis-field but someone had to win loose
